SASLAW Webinar – Extending maternity and parental protections to self-employed workers

The South African Law Reform Commission (SALRC) has recently released Discussion Paper 153: maternity and parental benefits for self-employed workers in the informal economy, for public comments. Join us in discussion with members of the Advisory Committee on this project, to discuss the constitutionality of the extension of this form of social security to atypical "employees" and engage on critical issues proposed for law reform. The Discussion Paper is available on the SALRC website at the following link: https://www.justice.gov.za/salrc/dpapers.htm

SASLAW will host this discussion on Tuesday 7 September 2021, at 16h00 via Microsoft Teams Live event. To register visit: https://www.saslaw.org.za/index.php/events/
